PRAY

- For the doctoral students who balance the demands of family, ministry, teaching in their seminary, and doctoral studies.
- For the Latin American professors all over North, Central, and South America who mentor the doctoral students in person and via the internet.
- For health, strength, and wisdom for Chuck and Jean as they lead the program together with the Latin American professors.
- For ongoing financial support for program costs and for the doctoral students who struggle to pay tuition.
The Protestant church continues to grow—so much so that it has outgrown the number of Bible school and seminary professors needed for proper training in Latin America. As desks fill and eager future Christian leaders enroll in Bible schools and seminaries, there is an urgent need for theological trainers who will shape the next generation of Latin American pastoral leaders.

To address this need, Chuck and Jean Van Engen helped launch the Latin American Leadership Development Program (LALDP) in 2004; Chuck now serves as its president. LALDP is a multinational, multidenominational community of Latin American scholars, churches, and educational institutions that provides advanced theological training in Spanish and Portuguese. Jean Van Engen is LALDP’s accountant and chief financial officer.

To learn more or support this ministry, visit:

www.rca.org/vanengen
cvanengen@lacmin.org

About the ministry

The Protestant church continues to grow—so much so that it has outgrown the number of Bible school and seminary professors needed for proper training in Latin America. As desks fill and eager future Christian leaders enroll in Bible schools and seminaries, there is an urgent need for theological trainers who will shape the next generation of Latin American pastoral leaders.

To address this need, Chuck and Jean Van Engen helped launch the Latin American Leadership Development Program (LALDP) in 2004; Chuck now serves as its president. LALDP is a multinational, multidenominational community of Latin American scholars, churches, and educational institutions that provides advanced theological training in Spanish and Portuguese. Jean Van Engen is LALDP’s accountant and chief financial officer.

To learn more or support this ministry, visit:

www.rca.org/vanengen
cvanengen@lacmin.org